'Prayer Ministers': Frontline Workers in Scaling the Wall of Covid-19

Fr Kelvin Ekhoegbe, OCD

Saturday 4th July 2020

Prayer, as taught by spiritual writers transcends space and time. In other words, God is not limited by space. As prayer ministers at a time like this, we feel handicapped and frustrated. Prayer ministers are, as it were, thrown into unknown deep water where they have the choice of either swimming or drowning. There is a growing awareness that prayer ministers are front-line “workers” in the battle against Covid-19. How has the experience of the pandemic reshaped our ministry? What deep spiritual value did we learn from this experience as frontline workers?

Fr Liam Finnerty, OCD

A Carmelite priest and serves as the prior of the Carmelite community at Boars Hill, Oxford.

Kelvin Ekhoegbe, OCD is a Carmelite priest and holds degrees in Philosophy and Theology—The Dominican Inst Ibadan and Inst Catholique de Toulouse (Catholic University of Toulouse), respectively.
